A MARVEL.

An old astronomer there was
Who lived up in a tower
Named Ptolemy Copernicus
Flammation McGower.
He said: "I can prognosticate
With estimates correct,
And when the skies I contemplate
I know what to expect.
When dark'ning clouds obscure my sight,
I think perhaps 'twill rain,
And when the stars are shining bright
I know 'tis clear again.
And then abstractly he scanned
The heavens hour by hour,
Old Ptolemy Copernicus
Flammation McGower.
—Carolyn Wells in St. Nicholas.

THAT SEDAN CHAIR.

"I repeat it," said Jacques d'Eblignac, with an emphasis so curious that all turned to look at him; "it gave me the fright of a lifetime."
"A sedan chair?"

"Yes. Listen, if you would know all about it." And he told us the following story:

"A love tale," said he, "of the city of Lille, of my twentieth year, and my pastry cook's daughter, a mere child, but so pretty, so sweet, so adorably coquettish; moreover, so admirably skilled in all pertaining to her father's business. Nowhere else could I buy such cakes, such buns, such sugared almonds.
And the stacks and stacks of rich confections that I devoured each day to prove my devotion!

"The fire of my love—which she returned between the smiles bestowed upon her father's customers—alone saved me from gastritis by consuming the heaviness of my stomach."

"This was the state of things, when, one day, I chanced to find, the pass key of 'le pere,' who spent half his time in the winshop across the way and the other half gossiping at his door with his equally idle neighbors."

"Determined to profit by this piece of luck, I managed to speak a word to Victoire, my little sweetheart, and to propose to her a visit to the theater that evening, if she could elude the vigilance of her mother and join me unseen.
She could easily re-enter by means of the pass key."

"Victoire was charmed with my inspiration, and six hours after I had conceived the project we had carried it into execution. Although it was the middle of the winter the night was superb, a late rising moon, but thousands of brilliant stars shining from every quarter of the heavens. Victoire trembled like a leaf in the wind, but I was filled with such burning ardor that it mounted to my head like a drink of wine."

"We were young, you see; the theater for us a scene of enchantment, in love with each other and more than happy. Our hearts, like the strings of some delicately tuned instrument, vibrated to the slightest touch. In fact, we forgot everything but each other and never thought of moving when at last the final curtain fell until the lampist appeared to turn out the lights."

"Hurrying then to the street, we found that the night had changed. The stars were gone, the moon hidden under a canopy of clouds, a cold, penetrating rain beginning to fall and all the sedan chairs gone with the stars."

"No, I was wrong; one was left standing by the roadside a little way below us. At sight of it a fatal idea popped into my brain. It was not yet very late, and I had still so many beautiful things to say to Victoire. Why not get into that chair, a refuge from the chilly rain, and talk everything all over again?"

"The clock at the corner was just striking 13 as we slipped into our moveable apartment, rather cramped, to be sure, but both of us were light and thin; so, drawing close and snug like birds in a nest, we awaited the passing of the shower—cheerfully awaited it, too—when all at once something very strange occurred."

"The door of the house near which the chair was standing opened noiselessly, as if hung on velvet, and two men looked out, evidently desiring neither to be seen nor heard."

"Assured of solitude and a clear coast, they descended to the street, bearing in their arms a heavy burden. Just at that instant the moon slid from under the clouds, and we distinctly saw that this burden was a human being wrapped in a long cloak closely muffled about the face and shoulders."

"This was startling enough, but fancy our horror when the bearers of this strange load moved straight to the chair where we crouched in terror, and one of them already had his hand on the door when Victoire uttered a stifled shriek, answered by a frightful oath, and quick as a flash the men were gone as they had come, and the door reclosed as softly as it had opened."

"The whole thing had passed so quickly that we might have believed it some fearful vision, only doubt was not possible—we had seen it—both of us had distinctly seen the same thing, and without a spoken syllable were filled with the same blood freezing thought—murder—a murder doubtless committed in this very house, from which the murderers were now seeking to carry away and to conceal all traces of the crime with the victim's body."

"Oh, let us go, let us go!" moaned Victoire tremblingly. "Let us go at once, Jacques. I am so frightened!"
"Go? Yes, I was willing enough, but how? For as Victoire spoke, two men emerged from the darkness around us—we could barely distinguish them, as the moon had gone behind a cloud again—caught up the chair and were bearing us away into the dismal night."

"This was a predicament. We were stupefied. What must we do? Cry out, and make a dreadful scandal? Betray Victoire, and expose myself to the risk of discovery? Never! It was not to be thought of! It was not to be thought of! It was one of those times when trust in chance was the only resource, hoping by blind confidence to propitiate her favor."

Perhaps this was our case; perhaps,

A Padlocked Heart.

A thousand exquisite tortures which a coarser nature can never experience or comprehend.

The least derangement or disorder of the delicate organism of their sex overwhelms the whole physical and mental being with weakness and wretchedness.

But it is a mistake to suffer these troubles in silence. They may be cured in the perfect privacy of home, without the repugnant ordeals of examinations and "local treatment," which the family doctor is sure to insist upon.

No physician in the world has had a wider or more successful experience in the treatment of woman's diseases than Dr. R. V.
Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. His "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most obstinate and complicated feminine difficulties.

It is the only medicine of its kind prepared by an educated, skilled physician.

Mr. J. P. Sued of Omaha, Texas, writes: "My wife was badly afflicted with female weakness.
We tried three of the best physicians in the country without benefit, but at great expense.
My wife grew worse, and we gave up in despair. She could not get in and out of doors without help, was not able to stand on her feet long at a time, complained of dragging down pains in abdomen. Nothing but an untimely death seemed awaiting her, when—happy thought!—the name of Dr. Pierce came to my mind. I wrote to Dr. Pierce for his advice, followed it, and my wife improved perceptibly from the first two weeks' treatment, continued the treatment six months, and pronounced the cure complete, at a cost of less than one month's treatment by the last physician we employed before consulting Dr. Pierce. She used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the lesions recommended by him. It has been two years since, and the good effect is permanent."

The Trans-Mississippi and International Congress is composed of delegates from every State and Territory West of the Mississippi river. The idea of this exposition originated in that Congress at its session at Omaha in 1895, and the project has become a National enterprise and the National Commission has been organized and is in active service, there being one commissioner for each of the several departments of the Government. Most of the Trans-Mississippi States are well along in the way of gathering exhibits from their respective States and many of them have made liberal appropriations, while others are preparing exhibits through private enterprise.

Vice-President H. B. Maxson of Reno, has made arrangements whereby he can get Nevada exhibits, shipped from any point in the State along the line of the C. P. R. R., to Omaha and return, and he requests all persons who wish the interests of the State advertised, to co-operate with the Expon-sition County Commissioner of his county, whose name is shown above, and prepare some product of his county and send it to the nearest point on the C. P.
R. R. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited, and, in addition, to the same point at the close of the exposition, free of expense to the exhibitor.
Full information should accompany everything sent for exhibition. Presiding anything to the line of the railroad a full description should be given to the Exposition Commissioner of the county, who in turn will notify the Vice-President, who will notify him what action to take, otherwise there is a many duplications. Apply to your County Representative for full and information, and don't let this opportunity of advertising the resources of Nevada be lost.

THE WAR SPIRIT AROUSED.

The war spirit has been aroused by the destruction of the American battleship Maine in Cuban waters and, like Banquo's ghost, will not down. As yet conservative people, who do not want grimvisaged war to spread desolation along the Atlantic Coast, are awaiting the result of the investigation now being made to ascertain the cause of the Maine catastrophe before expressing an opinion as to whether the United States should declare war against Spain. There is general unanimity, however, in public sentiment regarding the Cuban question. Men of all parties, except the most ardent admirers of Hannibalism, favor the recognition of Cuba by the United States. They argue that the war in Cuba has been waged for years; that the Spaniards are making no headway against the insurgents and that Cuba is entitled to recognition and that the United States should acknowledge the independence of the island. This might cause war, but it is not probable that it would. Spain cannot afford to declare war against the United States for no other cause than recognizing the independence of Cuba. There would be no injustice in that act. The Cubans are entitled to recognition by all the rules of civilized countries and if Spain should make it a cause for war, right as well as might would be on the side of the United States. However, if it is proved that the Spanish Government was implicated in a plot to blow up the Maine, war will doubtless result and the independence of Cuba will be one of the first results of the conflict.

AN APOLOGY FROM SPAIN.

The Spanish Government has officially disclaimed in positive terms all responsibility for the reflections on the President contained in the De Lome letter to Senor Canalejas. This disclaimer is accepted as ample apology by the State Department at Washington, and that department officially announces that the incident is satisfactorily closed.

This official statement implies that the Governments of Spain and the United States are now on the same terms as if the Spanish Minister at Washington had not called the President a low politician and dissembler, who while truckling to the Spanish Minister and secretly leaving him an opening to get out openly pandered to the jingoism of his own party.

Many are of the opinion, and the opinion is based on the course of the Administration on the Cuban question, that De Lome for once in his diplomatic career told the truth. However as the business of diplomats seems to be to use language to conceal their thoughts, De Lome was guilty of an unpardonable indiscretion for which he suffered the penalty by being officially decapitated.

The Examiner-Journal are agitating the question to have Lincoln's birthday declared a National holiday and the agitation is bearing fruit in the form of many communications from all parts of the country favoring the idea. The people of the South as well as North are enthusiastic and offer many good reasons why the day should be set apart and recognized by the American people. The fact that it occurs near Washington's birthday is no objection. Around Washington clings the memories of the establishment of the nation, while Lincoln is associated with the new birth of the nation on a broader foundation and he will for all time be considered a second Washington. So says N. P. Chipman, Department Commander or the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of California and Nevada.

The derisive cries and jeers that a few days ago were directed against Zola, the novelist, now have turned to cheers from the French populace. Developments in his trial have changed the tide of public opinion greatly and the criticism is now against Esterhazy. Evidence has been produced at the trial that causes serious doubt regarding Captain Dreyfuss' guilt and the fact that the evidence comes from military authority has a tendency to show that Zola's severe criticism on the French Army methods were founded on more than a mere idle fancy.

During the ordeal Zola has conducted himself in a brave and dignified manner and the situation now bids fair, that instead of being disgraced and punished he will be made the hero of the hour as far as France is concerned.

The rumor that the President had called upon the Governors of the several States to report on the condition of the militia, in view of the strained relations between the United States and Spain, is groundless. The Spanish Government has rendered what our State Department deems ample apology for the De Lome letter and that seems to satisfy the President. The holders of Spanish bonds have too much influence at Washington to permit a rupture with Spain for any insult to the President by its Ministers.

The Spanish man-of-war in New York harbor creates some little uneasiness in the big city. Upon her arrival police boats were detailed to conduct her to an anchorage and she will be closely scrutinized and her every movement watched. In view of the treachery to the United States Battleship Maine, the Spanish officers may feel auspicious of getting a dose of the Spanish style of warfare.

WAS IT TREACHERY?

McKinley Believes the Maine Disaster the Result of Accident.

As yet opinions regarding the Maine disaster are so conflicting and the reports so much at variance that nothing of a definite character has been arrived at concerning the cause of the explosion that wrecked one of the finest vessels in the Navy and sent over two hundred of the brave boys on her, to an untimely death.

The Cabinet meeting on Thursday night, called for the purpose of considering the situation, resulted in the decision to prepare for an emergency and to mobilize southern troops on the southern coast for quick transfer to Cuba.

A Court of Inquiry has been selected and will proceed to Havana to investigate the circumstances of the wreck of the Maine. The torpedo boat Cushing has been ordered to Havana. The President has also wired the Governors of Southern States to report the force of militia under their control that can be moved on quick marching orders. McKinley is inclined to believe, judging from the information so far received, that the blowing up of the Maine was the result of an accident aboard ship and expressed a hope that the official inquiry will demonstrate the fact.

Captain Sigsbee of the Maine sent a cipher message to the War Department setting out the facts in his opinion, that the disaster was caused by an enemy and that the reason that he removed the wounded to Key West, was that he feared more trouble.

Department news is kept close and President McKinley and the Cabinet are charged with unamerican censorship in suppressing the news. Secretary Long claims that all news has been given out, but he is emphatically contradicted by those who claim to be in a position to know.

Experienced naval officers almost unanimously ridicule the theory that the first explosion occurred on the ship, they say that such a thing was impossible. Every theory, including coal combustion, blowing up of steam boilers, fire in magazines, and in fact all that have been advanced are generally laughed at.

Emil Gathmann, the torpedo and gun inventor and an expert in explosives, says the wreck was not the result of an explosion inside of the vessel. He claims that the powder inside of the magazines of the Maine would not explode if thrown into a flame.

Bob Evans, formerly commander of the Brooklyn, says that the explosion was caused by a missile from some source and that all other theories may be left out of consideration, for such an explosion could not occur on board of a modern man of war unless under the most extraordinary circumstances.

The dead and wounded as they were received from the boats after having been picked up were met with jeers and jokes by the rabble which had gathered at the Havana water front. This demonstration taken with the exultant remarks of Spanish officials now and then dropped is almost conclusive that the outrage was planned.

Correspondents on the ground say that there can be no other solution than that the act was one of diabolical treachery on the part of the Spaniards.

Congress yesterday appropriated $200,000 for relief and to raise the Maine. The situation has had a depressing effect on the stock market and business generally in the east. Eastern people are strongly set for war, believing it the only solution of the Cuban question and the only way in which the United States Government can uphold and maintain its dignity.

The cutting of the cable between Key West and Havana yesterday looks ominous and increases the seriousness of the situation. The funeral of the murdered sailors was held in Havana, the Spanish officers and troops acting as escort. Many tributes were placed on the coffins by societies in Havana and the crowds of people that lined the streets stood in respectful silence as the cortege passed.

WEATHER BULLETIN.

(Copyright, 1898, by W. T. Foster.)

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 19.—My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from 23d to 27th.

The next disturbance will reach the Pacific Coast about the 23th, cross west of Rockies country by the close of March 1st, the great central valleys Mar. 2d to 4th, the Eastern States 5th.

Warm wave will cross the west of Rockies country about February 28th, great central valleys March 2d Eastern States March 4.

The cold wave which comes the west of Rockies country about March 5th and 6th will cross the central valleys 5th, Eastern States March 7th.

Temperature of the week ending Mar 7th will average about normal East of the Rocky mountains and below on the Pacific slope. In these latitudes the term "Pacific slope" applies to all the part of the United States lying west of the Rocky mountain range.

In the forecast to Cuba on high temperature wave was predicted on about 8th and 9th of February and in the regular bulletin this sentence was published: "A climax in the weather will occur in the Northern State from 6th to 10th of February; a high temperature wave with a general thaw and a great fall in temperature with heavy rains and snows in Northern States."

I challenge the weather bureau of the United States to equal my January Long Range forecast for Chicago. These Chicago forecasts will stand good, in a general way, for the upper lakes and upper Mississippi valleys. My next bulletin will contain general forecast of March weather for the United States and Canada.

Not My Work, Mr. Appeal. CARSON CITY, February 17, 1898.

Editor Appeal:—In the Appeal of this date you say:

"The Reno Journal is authority for the statement that E. D. Kelley, one of its proprietors, is a candidate for Secretary of State before the Silver Convention."

While every citizen of the State has the undoubted right to be a candidate for any office in the gift of the people of Nevada, I beg leave to assure you that I have not up to this date taken advantage of my fellow citizens, who may not have an interest in a newspaper, by announcing myself a candidate for any office, in the columns of the JOURNAL, of which I am one of the proprietors. A correspondent of the JOURNAL did so, but I am not that correspondent and I am not responsible for what he writes.

I have not in the thirty-six years in which I have resided in Nevada, been a candidate before a convention for any office, but I claim the right, nevertheless, if I feel disposed and the people think I am qualified, to ask a convention for a nomination. As yet, however, I have not announced through the JOURNAL or any other paper that I am a candidate for any office, and I am by no means convinced that the people want me to be.

Very respectfully,
E. D. KELLEY.

The New Congressional Minister. The Rev. F. Vernon Jones has been duly installed as minister at the Congregational Church. Mr. Jones has been located at San Mateo, Cal., for some time and comes very highly recommended. He is an energetic gentleman and has already commenced his work with a determination that promises success. His pleasant manner and his idea that men should be met as they are and in the various legitimate callings of life receive proper recognition and consideration; instead of meeting them with the "I am holier than thou" restraint and dignity, will make him many friends. Rev. Mr. Jones has received a cordial welcome from his congregation and he will doubtless be welcomed by the residents of Reno generally as the opportunity offers. His church announcement will appear in to-morrow morning's issue.

"Our Flat" To-Night.

When that screaming farcical comedy, "Our Flat" which will be presented at the Opera House on this Saturday evening was first presented in New York, the critics of that city were startled into amazement by the simplicity of its plot and the cleverness of execution, and marvelled at the fact that so good a play could be built around so simple a matter; and, strange of all that not one of the hundred of playwrights in New York had thought of it before.

Yet the center of the story of the play was before their eyes every day—a flat in Harlem with the customary elevator; but the possibilities never occurred to them. The reason for this is that few writers think of getting out of the beaten path of plots, and composing a play on new and novel lines. "Our Flat" has been termed "convulsingly funny," and no doubt it is, if accounts of it are corroborative. The humor is of that broad, but domesticated kind, appreciated by all classes and conditions of people. There are varied elements of fun in it, so varied in fact, as to contain something for all. And Cook's Comedians, presenting "Our Flat," are said to be an organization of comedians, capable of depicting every situation in the play to its most remote limits. The play points of spectacle, and several of a high order of merit will be presented with the mounting of the piece more than usual attention has been given.

Mr. Lee's Course of Lectures at Carson. The Carson papers give notice of a course of lectures by Rev. Frederic O. Lee. The first of the series is titled at Carson for the 21st and the subject will be "The Lady and the Tiger." Mr. Lee delivered this lecture in Reno and simply captured his audience and for a day or two after it was the principal subject of conversation on the streets, in business places and at home until a number of those who had not heard the lecture requested Mr. Lee to repeat it. He did so and there was scarcely standing room in the Opera House.

Mr. Lee's second lecture will be on "India" and the third of the series on "The Klondike." The Carsonites may be assured that there is a treat in store for them, as the lecturer is an eloquent and forceful speaker. His style is of the dramatic order and his word pictures and accurate descriptions of scenes and incidents which present the humorous side as well as the serious, entertains and keeps his audience on the qui vive for each succeeding and striking situation in his story.

Carson should give him liberal patronage for as a rule Nevada towns have few opportunities offering the instruction and entertainment which may be gained at one of Mr. Lee's lectures.

District Court. The District Court was occupied yesterday in hearing a motion for a new trial in the case of Adam Gillespie vs. E. W. Roberts and Wm. Webster. The case was argued and submitted.

In the case of the City of Reno vs. the Riverside Mill Co., before Judge Talbot, it was agreed to submit the case on briefs.

Wm. Ireland, Jr., of San Francisco was a guest at the Riverside yesterday.

SUMMONS.

IN THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT Court of the State of Nevada, in and for Washoe county. The State of Nevada sends to M. T. Chappell, greeting: You are hereby required to appear in an action commenced against you as defendant by George D.
Winters as plaintiff in the second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the County of Washoe and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of day of service), if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said District, and in all other cases forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The action is brought to recover against you a judgment and decree rescinding certain claims elevated in the County of Washoe State of Nevada, which lands are described as follows, to-wit: South half of the southeast quarter and south half of the southwest quarter of section three (3), south 1/4 of the southeast quarter and south 1/4 of the southwest quarter of section four (4), township twenty-four north, range nineteen east, Mount Diablo base and meridian, containing three hundred and sixty acres according to the United States survey of said lands, said judgment and decree is sought against you respecting said lands on the ground that said lands have all the money and funds that have been paid and used for the purchase of said lands, also all money paid out and used as costs in connection with the purchase of said lands, also because of the fact that said lands were purchased by you for the plaintiff and for him only, in payment of a debt due to the plaintiff, and on the further ground that plaintiff has for fourteen years last past paid the taxes on said lands, and has had for said term the exclusive use and possession of said lands, holding and claiming the same as his lands and property for said term of fourteen years, and further, on the ground that his claim of ownership and possession of said lands has been for the last fourteen years uninterrupted by any claim made against him, and which will more fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court, at Reno, in said county, and to which you are especially referred, and you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this 15th day of January, A. D., 1898.

and I am inclined to think the latter, we were both so frightened that we had neither the strength nor the courage to attempt anything. Victoire had unconsciously thrown herself into my arms. Her warm breath fanned my cheek. Her little hand held fast to mine. No matter what threatened us, it was something, at least, to have gained this happiness; we would die together, her last sigh on my lips.

"For these men—we were sure of it—were accomplices of the first two, and by a previous arrangement they had been engaged for the carrying off and concealment of the dead body. Deceived by our joint weight, they believed they had it, and we, instead of the murdered victim, were hurrying away through the shadowy gloom.

"True, so we were, but where were we hurrying? Where were we heading, as the men trotted on with swift, untiring steps, at times almost a run? What were they going to do with us—their sinister burden?

"Presently we saw that we were passing one of the city gates leading into the distant country. Again I was tempted to cry out, to call to the sentinel, but fear for Victoire deterred me, Victoire, whose mother believed her slumbering sweetly under her little white curtains.

"What should I do? What could I do? I was nearly distracted.

"By this time we were clear of the suburbs, but still swept onward. Another lightning of the sky, and I saw ahead of us a glistening sheet of water, the river Dordogne. I knew it well—a deep, rapid stream, the running of whose current we even now could hear.

"Undoubtedly the wretches were going to fling us into this seething vortex.

"This time I would have cried out, but Victoire, mad with fright, clung so tightly to my neck, clasping me with such force that my voice died in my throat, my eyes closed and the cry was strangled."

"How long a time elapsed I never knew. I was brought back to consciousness by the chair striking the ground. They had set it down preparatory to—yes, but where, where? Decidedly not in the river. It was a room, on the contrary, the dirty, grimy chamber of a low country wine-shop, where a crowd of rough, coarse men were drinking, swearing and rolling about a lot of boxes, barrels and packages, like merchandise.

"Mme. Jervaise, Mme. Jervaise!" they shouted in chorus, as our bearers set us down. "Have you brought us Mme. Jervaise?"

"She is here," the bearers replied.

"To work, to work, then! We have no time to lose."

"And the chair door was thrown open.

"But scarcely had they caught sight of Victoire and me, crouching half dead in the bottom of the chair, when a wild stampede took place, a helter skelter rush for the outside. The lights were extinguished, the thud of feet was heard pounding away into the night, and then a deep, bloodcurdling stillness.

"We were alone in black darkness.

"Luckily I had noticed the direction of the door. To leap from the chair, seize Victoire's hand and make my way to it was the work of a second. The clouds had not deepened, the rain had ceased, and by the purest miracle we found the road back to the city by daylight we were safe at home.

"A fortnight later perhaps an article in a morning paper gave me the key to the mystery of that hideous night in which we (Victoire and I) had been so strangely involved. The article announced the capture by the police of a band of smugglers who had installed themselves in an old, abandoned wine-shop in the outskirts of Lille—a regular magazine, as it turned out, of contraband goods, which they had smuggled in and out of the city by means of a manikin representing a sick old woman, partly paralyzed, and which, muffled in wraps and placed in a sedan chair, they carried back and forth under the very nose of the gendarmes without the slightest fear of detection.

"An invalid ordered by the doctor to take the steam baths," they told the officers of the law, "by name Mme. Jervaise."

"Mme. Jervaise! The name told me all and explained everything that hitherto had seemed mysterious and inexplicable in our midnight adventure. Happily for us our nocturnal escapade had never been suspected, and Victoire and I escaped a summons to appear as witnesses before the court of assizes.

All the same from that day to this the thought of a sedan chair gives me goose flesh down the spine."—From the French in Cincinnati Enquirer.

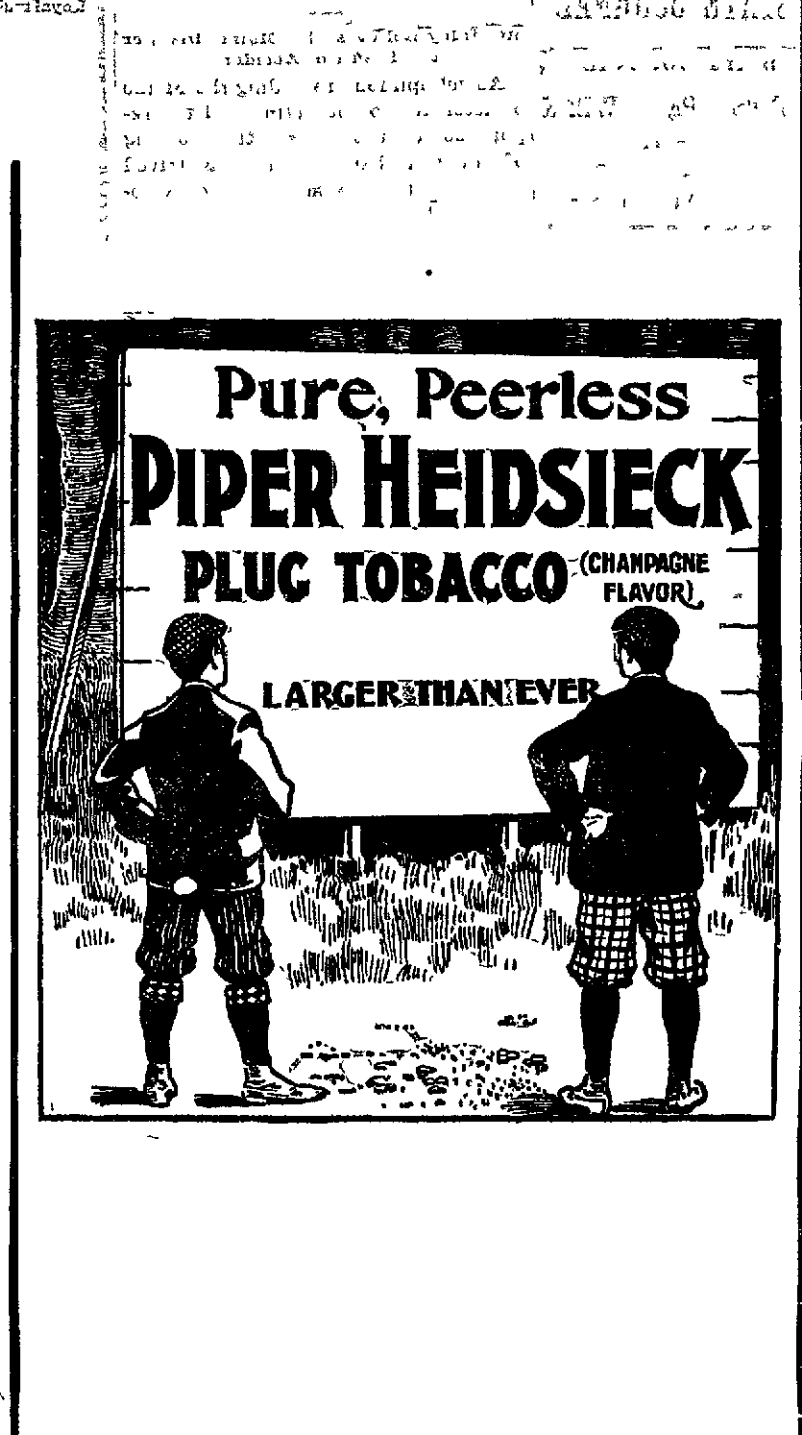

The Chrysanthemum.

When the plant was introduced, about 1840, it was only the small daisylike flower, now only seen as a rule in cottage gardens, which was highly prized as a novelty. The taste for growing and showing it began early, and before 1860 there were many chrysanthemum societies in existence, among them the Stoke Newington, which formed the nucleus of the National society. Yet it was not until 1859, when the plants suffered severely from early frosts, that there was any idea of growing it under glass. The Japanese variety was noticed in 1864 as a novelty, "very curious and interesting, but scarcely ornamental." How little did the author of these remarks suspect what a future was before the plant he so summarily set aside! Three years later, however, we find Japanese varieties recommended with pomp and uncured, and since then they have ever increased in favor.

The gorgeously colored, moplike blooms now exhibited every autumn would certainly astonish that writer of 30 years ago. The golden and bronze shades of the chrysanthemum suited the taste of the promoters of the "high art" æsthetic movement of a few years ago, which, if it had no other merit, helped to bring this flower more forward and revived the culturo of sunflowers, which were fast becoming extinct in our gardens.—Longman's Magazine

An Old Beverage.

Next to our grape wine it is believed that Japanese sake, or rice wine, is the oldest alcoholic beverage known to man, its use in Japan dating back over 8,000 years.
